The Culture and Scenery of Poetic Guilin

The old county of Yangshuo can be traced back 1400 years to the Tang Dynasty, but its clear, logical street layout is still visible today. The residences there are mostly stately homes built in a late Qing Dynasty architectural style. The folk homes, on the other hand, have yellow rammed earth walls that juxtapose beautifully with the striped white limestone on the ground. Nearby Lingqu is one of the oldest canals in the world and is known as “The Pearl of Water Conservancy in the Ancient World.” Built in 214 BC, Lingqu Canal has more than 2,000 years’ history and has a total length of 34 km.
